FISHING

BY TOM MARSHALL.

Should dog fish be muzzled during the fishing season? They are a menace to dispositions and lessen a fisherman's celestial chances. A fisherman's celestial chance was at Keithsburg, Ill., on the Mississippi river. Every likely shooting or fishing locality was an open book to me. My vacation periods were devoted to outdoor sports, encouraged by my parents, who indulged the uncannied content for health and prospective longevity.

New Boston, six miles up the river, was visited in 1921 by Abraham Lincoln, then a struggling young surveyor, whose livelihood was surveying the prairies of the Sucker state.

New Boston bay was favorite fishing grounds. Small and large-mouth bass lurked around the sunken logs. Striped bass and crappie dabbled around log and lumber rafts, laid up in the bay.

Those were the days of real sport. Cane poles, cotton lines, liner hooks, log core floats were the accessories dear to a fisherman's heart. Split bamboo rods, silk and tapered lines, flies, multiplying reels and asthetic anglers had not been launched upon an unsuspecting public.

Minnow baiting and succulent angleworms during the season, the classic skilled labor. Your jug cork was a "strike" indicator, total and continuous disappearance below the surface an invite to "set the hook."

With a number of poles and lines set for any old fish attracted by my live lures, I was "still" fishing from a Boston bay lumber raft. My cork disappeared, pole bent almost double, line splitting the water, the battle raged on, with a question of which would "take the count."

I was attached to an animated log, churning up and down the raft to relieve the line tension. He was cutting capers, introducing dips, dives, tail spins and sulking tactics with an occasional excursion under the raft. Man handling, he was "strong armed" back into open water, landing instructions from assembled fishermen, accompanied by the verdict "a dandy boss."

Eventually the swash-buckler made a mid-air flourish, shaking himself like an old hen getting out of the ashies. "Dog-fish" came in a fawning grunt from George Billings, my fishing partner. I was then my desire to pari back, no chance. This bait stealing kid "snapping" line-breaking member of the shark family, whose company with this "deep-sea" going member of the shark family, whose eyes are deposited in sacks of "mermaid purse form" who pursue their prey in packs like dogs, was finally landed.

ANSWERS TO NIMRODS.

Question—Is Canada making any efforts toward the protection and preservation of game? Have they any refuges or sanctuaries for birds? If so, where are they located?

OSCAR PEDERSON, Minneapolis, Minn.

Answer—Yes, it is claimed by those who know that Canada is more aggressive in the enforcement of game laws than we are on this side of the border. I have no record of the refuges and sanctuaries in the Dominion. The province of Quebec, the bird colonies situated on islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, with three definite areas in the country of Canada, have been set aside by parliament as protected areas, both for birds and their nests, with a penalty for the carrying of a gun or hunting gear within a mile of the refuges.

Question—Where can a sportsman go during the winter season to find good shooting and fishing? Don't direct me to some "hold-up" resort, as I am a man of moderate means. Give me the information which will be of interest to thousands of migrating sportsmen.

Lansing, Mich. D. R. MYERS.

Answer—There are many likely places in the South and West. A recent letter from that universally known sportsman, W. "Tramp" Irwin, who has found what he claims to be a hunting and fishing mecca at "Bay Minette, Ala." says he has never enjoyed such excellent sport with rod and gun as he has found at Bay Minette. Without unloading on "Tramp," would say if you will write him he will give you desired inside information.

FLEAGER SETS NEW RECORD AT SEATTLE

Playing a round of 65 strokes, with every putt holed, H. A. Fleager, the 1916 Pacific Northwest amateur golf champion, set a new mark for the Seattle course recently. He went out in 32 and home in 33. The former record was held jointly by Bob Johnstone, the club professional, and John H. Ballinger.

Fleager on no less than six occasions during the last six weeks had come up to the fourteenth tee four under par, and once he was five under. But, always there was a fall down in the last five holes, with 54 and 55 mixed in. In making his 65 he holed several long putts.

An amusing incident in the round, play in company with Sam Russell against Johnstone and George H. Tilden, occurred when Johnstone poked a flagger to within three feet of the twelfth pin. "That's one we get back," remarked Tilden. Yet, as matters turned out, Fleager's second was laid five feet from the flag, and when he ran it down the professional found a difficult putt left him for a birdie. He made it, but it was a discouraged pair who said a prayer over the third stroke. Fleager's card follows:

Out . . . 4 4 3 5 4 4 4 3 3—36

In . . . 4 3 3 4 4 3 4 4 4—35—69

OHIO STATE TO BE STRONG NEXT YEAR

Harley and Three Regulars To Be Lost, But Coach Wilce Has Fine Material Left

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18.—Ever since Ohio State's entry in conference football circles five years ago it has had an eleven that either led or ranked with the leaders. The greater part of its success in that time, of course, must be credited to its peer of gridiron heroes, "Click" Harley, who, what kind of a team will the Buckeyes have next year without the services of Mr. Harley?

The question is being whispered about these days wherever experts who followed the fortunes or failures of the "Big Ten" teams during the late season gather. Every man who has ever known Harley and written about him has a great deal of respect for his prowess and knew how invaluable he was to Ohio State. Many a coach wished the day had 48 instead of 24 hours in which he could prepare his team whenever he knew the Buckeyes with "Click" leading were on their way for a game.

But what about next season? Coach Jack Wilce has been sounded out on the problem. "Well," he admits he may never be able to replace Harley, but he is far from being pessimistic about the 1937 outlook at Columbus. In losing some of his present varsity players he will not be as hard hit as some of the other members on the "Big Ten" gridiron circuit. In addition to Harley, only three other regulars and one sub will be missing from the Buckeye roster next year.

"Trits" Holtkamp, the regular center who was so seriously injured in the Wisconsin game that he was unable to start against Illinois in the recent let-

SUNDAY SCHOOL PLANS CHRISTMAS PARTIES

For the past six weeks the Sunday school of St. John's Methodist church, has been engaged in a membership contest. The school has been divided into two sides, all the boys on one side and all the girls on the other. Under the rule of the campaign the losing side is to entertain the winning side with a high-grade entertainment. This entertainment will be held Saturday evening at the church, beginning at 8 o'clock, and will be in the nature of a reception to the new members of the school who have come in during this contest. A high-grade musical program has been provided under the direction of Mrs. G. T. Fitzhugh.

On Saturday afternoon the children of the beginners, primary and junior departments will have a Christmas party, beginning at 2 o'clock. Games will be played and each child will be given a small Christmas present. Then, on Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, the Sunday school will have a special Christmas service. Christmas songs have been arranged and the entire school will meet in the main Sunday school auditorium.

The entire membership of the church is invited to the Saturday evening reception, and also to the Sunday morning exercise.

Don't Disappoint Him. He will surely expect his Christmas box of Samson's fine Tadmor or Julia Marlowe cigars.

GREENVILLE ELECTS CITY OFFICERS FOR YEAR

GREENVILLE, Miss., Dec. 19. (Sp.)—At a special meeting of the city council Wednesday the following new officials were declared elected as the result of the balloting on Dec. 8: J. T. Gosh, mayor; Joel Wilkin, councilman First ward; Lyle Stirling, councilman Second ward; and A. G. Sledge, council-at-large. The new officials will assume office the first of the year. There was no opposition in the field.

Charles A. Comiskey having repudiated the wild tale that any belt from the American league ever was contemplated by himself, Harry Frazer and Jacob Ruppert, and Frazer having denied that he originated the story, the mystery is: Who gave the New York newspaper writers the tale out of which they got such a big laugh? Comiskey says no such scheme of a new major league as was published was ever broached in his hearing during his conferences with Ruppert and Frazer.

Joe (Goldie) Rapp, who played with Reemont in the Texas league the past season and is on the club's reserve list, belongs to the Cincinnati Reds next winter, according to a statement from Cincinnati, and Pat Moran means to take him south with the team in the spring. Rapp is not exactly a spring chicken, but neither is he a veteran and after his good work in Texas Manager Pat Moran thinks him at about ripe for a utility job with the Reds.
